FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Ohio based company awarded five-year worldwide Federal Govt. GSA Contract for energy services

Akron, Ohio September 27, 2004 Think Energy Management LLC is pleased to announce that is has been awarded a five year Federal Government General Services Administration (GSA) contract for Energy Services. This is the first GSA energy services contract awarded to an Ohio energy consulting firm.

Think Energy Management LLC's President, Richard G. Lubinski had this to say: "We are pleased to be awarded a five year GSA Schedule 871 II SIN 200 (energy management program support) and SIN 201 (energy audit services) contract. As a taxpayer, it is nice to see the Federal Government streamline its procurement process and have a serious commitment to reducing its energy costs. The Federal Government is leading the way for industrial, commercial, non-profit and state & local governments to take advantage of the numerous benefits and fast payback periods available from energy management programs."

The GSA schedules (or blanket contracts) enables a Federal Government agency to utilize the pre-approved vendors with pre-negotiated rates though a streamlined procurement process. By utilizing a GSA schedule, a government agency can reduce the time and expense of procurement. This streamlined procurement process saves the government time, money and eliminates the duplication of effort in checking references, past performance and negotiating rates. The GSA does not endorse any specific product or service.

The Federal Government is the nation's largest single energy user with an annual utility cost of $8 billion dollars. The Federal Government has mandated all government agencies reduce their energy consumption by 30% based on their 1985 energy consumption levels. Reducing energy costs in Federal buildings saves tax dollars, reduces air pollution and helps creates markets for energy efficient and renewable energy technologies.
